Tag Archives: GetSendIt If you're a customer of GetSendIt (getSendIt is the leading email marketing services company), you'll know that GetSendIt has a choice of products, most notably GetSendIt is Choice ezine, it's free service, on GetSendIt.com. But there is a choice of more. You can also have your own email service at getSendIt.com. That's not what I'm going to do here. I want to go to the GetSendIt Mail Centre where I can sort, organize and send emails. When you install GetSendIt's email client, you have the option to install the Mail Centre on your computer. There are loads of options there, including a folder where you can store your emails. So, what can you do when you have an email account and a mailbox? First up, it's very easy to create, save and print your email signature. If you open the GetSendIt Mail Centre, you can add a line to your signature, for example, "If you send me your email addresses I can include them in my GetSendIt newsletter." You can also add images to the signature. Once your signature is created and saved, you can send it to as many people as you want using the email client. Or, if you are like me, you can send a message to all your contacts at once. In my email program, I use the Send as a draft function. I can choose the recipients, include the signature and save the message as a draft to be sent later. If I want to send the message as an attachment, I choose "File" and open the file that I want to attach. The Send as a draft function is handy, but you have to be careful with it. If you send as a draft and then forget to send
