I'm an Indian student in Physics but I'm thinking about pursuing a PhD in USA. My question is that if I have completed 1 year research experience abroad, is that enough to apply for PhD? Is the research experience about the research project and publications or something else as well? A: A Ph.D. is a certificate awarded only after you fulfill a combination of criteria. The most important of those are

a) the quality of the work you did yourself (publishing the result of it and presenting it at conferences) and b) other people having verified your work to be valid (in peer-reviewed publications). The amount of work you did yourself will 595f342e71
